Episode 1

~~THE WHITE SLAVE~~

Stanley Morton, an American explorer and his friend Michael Donovan arrive in Africa on a hunting expedition. They bring an aeroplane, Morton being an experienced aviator. They pay Garbo, a Portuguese slave trader for the use of his elephants and preparations in furnishing natives for a sofari he is making into the unexplored jungle. Some slaves are brought in from a neighboring tribe, among them is a beautiful white girl. Stanley bribes his way into the stockade and finds that she is a Princess. Her father is the King of a large city far to the south. In a vision she tells of a land of white men called the Southlanders who capture her and her sister while out horsebackriding. The sister is sent bake with a demand for surrender of the city, Zoolah is kept a hostage.

A band of natives surprise the Southlanders, steal Zoolah and sell her as a slave. She is then sold to various tribes until captured by Garbo's men. Garbo sets his eye upon Zoolah and learning of the treasures of the Lost City which stanley unwisely tells him, offering to buy Zoolah which Garbo refueses, he deciding to kepp the girl, make her his wife and start an expedition to capture the Lost City.

Stanley and Michale decide to help Soolah escape in the aero-plane but are caught and locked in a stockade.

Michale plays the Jew's harp and an elephant has shown his love for music by dancing everytime Michale played his instrument.

Soolah is taken from the stockade and placed in Garbo's hut as a prisoner. Soolah tries to escape, opens a door and enters a lion arena where Garbo keeps his wild animals which he ships north from time to time.

In the stockade Michel takes solace in his Jew's harp.
Native warriors guard him, but the dancing elephant's head appears over the stockade. They seize the harness and are lifted over the wall, run to their aeroplane and speed away before the natives get them.

Soolah stands in the arena with the lions closing in on her.
